

Silver Wheaton and 3 More Cash Generating Companies That Look Cheap

Description

Global growth's persistent, slow rebound has been an anchor to many commodity stock's market prices. At a time when markets are reaching new highs, many energy and material companies' valuations look relatively cheap on a forward-looking basis. With forward price-to-earnings ratios below 15x, the following companies appear to be reasonable contenders for a value investment. After looking under the hood, do they all still appear that way?

In my mind, two of the companies that passed my screen most certainly are worth a closer look, while the other two should only find their way onto your watch-list. These two and their respective industries have several questions looming on the horizon. For more analysis and opinion, tune in to the video below.

The Motley Fool has created a Special FREE Report that will clue you into 3 of the best cash generating businesses in the world. It's called "3 U.S. Stocks Every Canadian Should Own" and it can be yours at no charge – just by clicking here.

Follow us on Twitter and Facebook for the latest in Foolish investing.

Fool contributor Taylor Muckerman does not own any of the companies mentioned in this post at this time. The Motley Fool doesn't own shares in any of the companies mentioned.

This video was created by Taylor Muckerman, a contributor to Fool.com.

CATEGORY

1. Investing

TICKERS GLOBAL

1. TSX:SU (Suncor Energy Inc.)
2. TSX:WPM (Wheaton Precious Metals Corp.)
3. TSX:YRI (Yamana Gold)

Category

1. Investing

Date

2025/08/22

Date Created

2013/05/22

Author

motley-fool-staff

default watermark